Hold-Up Trio Robs Seventh Ward State Liquor Store

Seventh Ward Liquor Store Robbed Friday

Trio Of Gunmen Tie Up Manager And Get $96 From Cash Register

ROBBERY OCCURS FRIDAY EVENING

Trio Make Escape After Hold-up—Only Meagre Description Secured

After flashing revolvers and tying up William Hartwell, manager, and Frank Carbone, a small boy, at 5:36 p. m. Friday, three bandits robbed the state liquor store, South Liberty street and escaped with $96.

Before they left one of the bandits severely kicked Hartwell when he attempted to look at them for the purpose of getting their description. They did not harm the small lad.

Because he was trussed up with strong twine, it took him some time to roll along the floor and knock over the telephone to alarm police. He was unable to get a description of their auto or the direction the car travelled.

Three Men Enter.

About 5:35 p. m. yesterday the three men entered the liquor store. One of them asked to purchase a case of "Four Roses" whiskey. Hartwell responded he did not know if he had that much in stock.

He turned his back and started to the rear of the store. Then he heard a noise. It was made by the men who had leaped over the counter. They pointed guns. One said: "This is a hold-up."

Then they seized him and used strong twine to bind his hands behind his back, and also tied his ankles together. They also tied up Carbone, who had gone to the store to get some empty boxes.

Hartwell was forced to lie down, face to wall and head pointed into

"American Hitler" May Be "Donald L. Robinson"

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The astonishing disclosure that Raymond Joseph Healy, self-styled "American Hitler," may be the mysterious "'Donald L. Robinson" now under arrest in Moscow today was presented to the state department.

Credence was given this solution of the puzzling case by members of New York Nazi organizations who revealed the 22-year-old Irish firebrand planned an extended tour of Europe at least two years ago.

Healy hasn't been seen by any of his friends here in a year.

It is known he married an attractive German girl who may be the bogus "Mrs. Ruth Norma Robinson," also held by the Moscow police.

The remarkable similarity between Healy's picture and that of "Robinson" led 22 of his associates to identify him without question last night as the man under arrest in the Soviet capital on suspicion of anti-Communist activities.

Governor Earle Ponders De Schweinitz Action

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—Gov. George H. Earle today enlisted the aid of the Goodrich relief committee and "other interested persons" in deciding whether to dismiss Karl De Schweinitz, secretary of public assistance.

He dispatched telegrams to the Goodrich members; Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Democratic national committeewoman; De Schweinitz, Roy Furman, speaker of the house; Earl G. Harrison, president of the State Public Charities association, and Sen. Harvey Huffman, president pro tempore of the senate, asking them to meet in his office Monday afternoon.

At that time, the chief executive will go over for the second time a 200-page report submitted to him by his relief survey committee, which conducted a 30-day probe of the assistance administration in the state.

Delayed Decision.

Governor Earle delayed his scheduled decision yesterday "because the report is so detailed more time is needed to consider it fairly."

Meanwhile, observers believed the

Rivers Swollen By Heavy Rains

Local Streams Rise Rapidly In Last 24 Hours Due To Increased Rainful

ICE GOES OFF SHENANGO RIVER

While local streams are not near the flood stage as yet, there has been a rapid rise in both the Neshannock and Shenango as a result of the heavy rainfall in the last 24 hours, which has amounted to 1.19 inches.

The ice had gone off the Neshannock some time early yesterday morning and during the early hours of this morning, the ice went off the Shenango river.

The Shenango had risen five feet since yesterday morning, the U. S Government figures reveal and at 9 o'clock this morning stood at a stage of 10.5 feet. This is approximately seven feet under the flood stage, so there is little cause for alarm from this source as yet.

Almost all of the rain which has fallen so far this week has run off into the streams, and in addition has taken with it the accumulation of snow which had fallen during the previous week. All told, the precipitation which has gotten into the streams here has amounted to close to three inches.

The ground has become softened up however by now and a lot of the precipitation which falls now will soak into the soil.

Wage-Hours Bill Defeat Threatens To Have Reprisals

"Wage-Hours Bloc" Open War Of Reprisal Against Farm Bill

DEFEAT OF BILL SHOCKS LEADERS

Administration Is Given Setback In 216-198 Vote For Recommitting Measure

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Seething with anger over failure of wage-hours legislation, embittered members of the house "wage-hours bloc" today opened a war of reprisal against the farm bill.

The movement threatened to embroil congress in a sectional battle between northern and southern Democrats, split the house into industrial and farm blocs, and further wreck President Roosevelt's special session program.

The wage-hours bill, which passed the senate last session and was brought to the point of a final vote in the house, was recommitted to the labor committee by a vote of 216 to 198 in a hectic night session.

The action, which stunned administration leaders and came after warnings were sounded that it would indefinitely doom minimum wages and maximum hours, climaxed a week of turbulent floor battles.

Police Arrest Youngstown Man On Charge Of Selling Marihuana Weed

ARREST IS MADE ON WASHINGTON ST.

Lieutenants George Kennedy, Suber and Detectives Moore and Young, at 9:30 a. m. today, in West Washington street, arrested Jim Ferrerra, Sharon Lane, Youngstown, on a charge of selling and possessing marihuana weed.

It was the largest haul of this kind of narcotic made here in years and the catch was planned several days. When Ferraro came here this morning the coup was executed perfectly.

Kennedy learned some time ago that Ferraro was suspected of selling marihuana weed, which is banned by federal statute, and learned that the man would be here.

Mrs. Donofrio Is Given Freedom By Jury Verdict

Eleven Men And One Woman Consider Decision As To Her Fate 12 Hours

VERDICT RETURNED AT 3:15 THIS MORNING

Freed Woman Makes Brief Address Of Appreciation To Jury After Acquittal

Twelve hours—almost to the minute—from the time they took the case, the jurors trying Mrs. Rose Donofrio for the killing of her son-in-law James Aiello, returned a verdict of "Not Guilty" this morning at three fifteen o'clock, in court room number one of the Lawrence County court house. They had taken the case at approximately 3:15 Friday afternoon.

An hour after taking the case Friday afternoon the jury returned to the court room and asked Judge W. Walter Braham to differentiate between voluntary and involuntary manslaughter. The judge explained what constituted each but also explained that Mrs. Donofrio was not charged with involuntary manslaughter and hence no verdict could be brought in on such a count.

Take 12 Ballots

From then on until the final ballot was taken the jury debated the case vigorously. No exact count of ballots was taken but one of the jurors estimated that 12 had been taken. This juror said, "at first there was a doubt in our minds concerning voluntary and involuntary manslaughter. This doubt the judge cleared. From then on we wrestled with the problem as to whether there was any intent in the mind of Mrs. Donofrio to harm Aiello or whether she did it as she claimed in self defense."

A number of the jurors were for first degree murder, four of them holding out until the eighth ballot it is reported. After that the votes were no higher than second degree and on the 12th ballot the vote was unanimous for acquittal.

Makes Speech To Jury

Following her acquittal Mrs. Donofrio thanked the jury but instead of thanking each one personally she made a short speech to them before they left the jury box. Following their discharge from

Subjugation Of All China Is Japan's Aim

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Japan is bent upon course of subjugating all China before its present military operations are brought to a halt, it was stated today on high diplomatic authority.

China's "open door" will be slammed shut against America British and French commerce when this is accomplished, but the progress will be gradual and accompanied by constant Japanese protestations to the contrary.

Japan's strategy, it was revealed by this unimpeachable authority, is to capture and occupy by military force all of China's coastline, from the extreme north down to Indo-China in the south, past Britain's stronghold of Hongkong.

Thus, by controlling the lengthy coastal plain, Japan would cut off the Chinese government and military forces from all sources of supply. By occupying all seaports with command of the customs, Japan would sever China's chief source of revenue-dictating at the same time the movement of American and other foreign commerce.

Already Japan has conquered the five northern provinces occupying an area of considerably greater extent than the New England states. Its military conquest extends southward through Shantung Province to Shanghai, and on to Hongkew. Westward it surges up the fertile Yangtze river valley more than 200 miles to Nanking, the capital and beyond.

Senate Farm Bill Goes To Conference

Upper House Passes Bill

Attempt Will Be Made To Compromise Features Of Measure In Conference

PROTRACTED BATTLE SEEN BY OBSERVERS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Its principal features still intact despite a month's bitter debate, the senate farm bill was scheduled today for conference, where a protracted battle is expected in an attempt to compromise its differences with the less controversial house measure.

The upper house passed the bill last night 59 to 29.

Senate leaders planned to request Rep. Jones (D) of Texas, chairman of the house agriculture committee, to immediately call conferences. Some doubt, however, developed whether this could be done, in view of the tangled legislative situation in the lower body.

Senate conferees named by Vice President Garner predicted virtually a new bill would be written before the house and senate are asked for the stamp of final approval. They were Senators McGill (D) of Kansas, co-sponsor of the bill; Bankhead (D) of Alabama; Hatch (D) of New Mexico; Frazier (R) of North Dakota, and Capper (R) of Kansas.

Frazier and Capper were appointed after Senators McNary (R) of Oregon, and Norris (I) of Nebraska, declined to serve. McNary said he was not qualified to serve because he opposed the bill. Norris did not make his reasons public.

It was that committee, headed by Dean Herbert F. Goodrich of the University of Pennsylvania law school, which drew up the relief legislation passed by the last legislature. It placed the administration of unemployment relief on a permanent basis under the department of public assistance.

De Schweinitz has been charged with waste and inefficient administration of relief by Mrs. Miller.

MRS. DONOFRIO IS GIVEN FREEDOM BY JURY VERDICT

the case and before they could leave the box Mrs. Donofrio walked over in front of them and said:

"Lady and gentlemen of the jury I want to express my appreciation to you for what you have done. I want you to believe that I only did what any mother would do under similar circumstances. You have had mercy on me and I hope God has mercy on all of you."

The knock at the jury room door came at 2:35 this morning, signifying that the jury had reached a decision. Mrs. Mary Conti, one of the tipstaves in charge of the jury then called Judge W. Walter Braham and the various court attaches necessary to the taking of a verdict. The jury was brought into court room number one at 3:10 o'clock.

James Laughlin, Foreman

When Prothonotary John A. Edgar asked the jury the usual question "who shall say for you," James Laughlin, juror number one pulled the verdict out of his pocket and read "We find the defendant Rose Donofrio not guilty."

As the verdict was being read Mrs. Donofrio stood at the side of her counsel Attorney Edwin K. Logan, hand upraised, immobile, not a trace of emotion flitting across her face. As she sat down, free from the law, only the slightest trace of a smile was on her face and a moment later she walked over and made her speech of appreciation.

Her husband, Carl Donofrio had gone home about an hour before the jury reported. Taken back to the sheriff's office to get her things, Mrs. Donofrio called her husband at their home on South First street and in a short time he came to the court house. Of the two Mr. Donofrio seemed the more delighted. His face was wreathed in smiles and he was profuse in his expressions of gratitude. The daughter, Teresa, was at home asleep and did not know of the verdict until her parents got home.

The case arose out of the shooting of James Aiello on September 10. As he drove up to the Donofrio home on that night Mrs. Donofrio walked out to the edge of their yard and shot him. Her plea was self defense, the commonwealth argued that it was first degree murder. The case was hard fought and well tried.

a corner. When he attempted to look at the men one of them kicked him in the body, causing him agonizing pain.

Ninety-six dollars was taken from the cash register.

Notifies Police.

Before leaving they warned Hartwell about giving an alarm. However, when he recovered from his pain, he rolled his body, knocked over a telephone and notified police.

Lieutenant Suber and Patrolman Price investigated the hold-up. Chief of Detectives Showalter was notified and questioned Hartwell for particulars. He obtained descriptions of the three bandits.

Today Showalter, who is acting as chief of police in place of Chief Ralph A. Criswell, detailed Detectives John Moore and John Young to take charge of the robbery investigation.

According to reports they may be the same bandits who three hours later robbed a liquor store in Pittsburgh. A teletype message gave a description that fitted that of the men who committed the banditry here.

Hartwell described the men as follows:

No. 1—Heighth, 5 feet 11 inches; hat, gray; overcoat, gray; age, between 35 and 40 years. Nationality, American.

No. 2—Height, 5 feet 7 inches; hat, dark; overcoat, dark; chin, pointed. Nationality, Italian.

No description was gained of the third man It was he who was said to have severely kicked Hartwell.

It was a victory for the American Federation of Labor, which demanded recommittal of the Black-Connery bill, after its own substitute was crushed.

"Will Kill Farm Legislation."

"This is the end—from now on its a battle," said Rep. Gavagan (D) of New York. "We will kill farm legislation. They tricked us by their trades.

"The farm bill was saved by votes from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. They'll never get the bill now."

Rep. McGranery (D) of Pennsylvania, and other wage-hours backers joined Gavagan in declaring they would force a fight to the finish for party supremacy between northern and southern Democrats.

Other backers of wage-hours legislation laid plans to renew the fight in the special session, hopeful that a satisfactory measure can be worked out.

"The sweated industries have gained a great victory, and if the money spent is propagandizing around the capitol had been used to raise the wages of the people, it would have been put to far better use," said Chairman Mary T. Norton (D) of New Jersey of the labor committee, who led the fight for the bill.

Only Beginning.

"This is only the beginning—we have only begun to fight."

The tide of battle apparently was determined in the last hours of fighting over the measure, when many exemptions from the bill were voted.

"The reason the wage-hours bill was defeated is because the exemptions made, and those refused, showed that it could not work," said Rep. Fuller (D) of Arkansas. "Members got disgusted with the trades for votes made on the floor in the last hours of the fight."

Rep. McReynolds (D) of Tennessee, a leader of the opposition, announced he would support "wage-hours legislation of the right kind".

The Black-Connery bill, which was defeated, set up an administrator in the labor department, with authority to name wage-hours committees and to approve minimum wages up to 40 cents an hour and limit the work week to 40 hours. One of the most rigid anti-child labor provisions ever proposed in congress was written into the bill, only to fall with recommittal.

Speaker Bankhead and Rep. Rayburn of Texas, Democratic leader, were shocked by the house vote. Their polls showed the recommittal motion could be crushed and the bill passed.

en jams at dams in the upper parts of the Allegheny.

Will Flood Cellars

A 27-foot level with flood cellars in the lower business sections and drive families in other low-lying sections from their homes.

"Rain is still falling all over the watershed for the third day," Brotzman reported. "If it should continue throughout the day, I'll probably have to revise my figure upward.

"But, I don't think the rain will continue long. In predicting the 27 foot stage I'm figuring on more rain today. I don't think there's enough on the ground to cause that level.

"It doesn't look serious. I think 27 feet will be the outside figure-defending of course, on the rain. In all probability, it won't rain much longer."

The rise followed more than 60 hours of rainfall that was general over the Allegheny-Monongahela watershed. The Allegheny, Brotzman said, was rising faster than the Monongahela.

FOR A JOYOUS CHRISTMAS

WHAT does Christmas mean to you? There are those, unfortunately, whose plans for the observance of the festival concern only themselves, their own families, their own homes. If they have a beautiful tree, brilliantly illuminated, with an abundance of gifts for themselves and their families, a dinner which makes them pleasantly uncomfortable and if a cheerful spirit pervades the house during the holiday season, Christmas has been a success.

Subjected to honest analysis, however, such a Christmas is essentially a selfish business, lacking in every element necessary to a proper observance of the holiday. A Christmas which involves no thought of little children whose stockings and stomachs will be empty Christmas morning, no thought of the aged and forgotten poor, cannot be productive of true happiness.

Christmas, if it is to be distinguished by the spirit of the First Christmas, must be primarily religious and spiritual in character and its adequate observance involves charity toward others, especially the children of misfortune.

HOME LIGHTING FOR CHRISTMAS

Among the things which add greatly to the Yuletide spirit in a community are attractively lighted homes. One cannot pass such places without feeling that the people who live there have big hearts and a friendliness that is not always hidden from their neighbors. Somehow one seems to be assured by the warm lights of their Christmas decorations that they are people of good will.

We realize that not everyone can afford to spend much for Christmas decorations, but even a very limited amount—with a little work and thought—often produces an excellent display.

TO SAVE MOTHERS AND BABIES

If forty organizations which will participate in a Washington conference next month on better care of mothers and babies are sufficiently zealous they face an opportunity of doing something concretely constructive about the appalling maternity death rate in this country variously ranked as highest second highest or third highest in the entire world.

The fact that 147,677 deaths of mothers and new-born babies are reported for one year in the United States justifies serious remedial action. In a New York address last May, Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, scored as needless the death of at least 10,000 mothers and 100,000 infants every year.

The coming conference naturally will press for more education for women in maternity matters. But it likewise will seek to provide expert obstetrical services for mothers in the lowest financial brackets. "Refresher" courses in modern methods for rural physicians will be stimulated. Certainly, Dr. Parran's reminder that 40,000 babies are born every year with no attendant for the mother, and several hundred thousand others are ushered into the world by midwives, bespeaks a great need for concerted, intelligent action.

WOMEN AND CHARITIES

It may be true, as asserted by two speakers before the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, that women of great wealth give less to charity than do men in similar circumstances. The complaint was made that though women own 60 per cent of the bonds and savings and are the beneficiaries of 80 per cent of the life insurance policies, they are not sufficiently will-minded. That is to say, they are less inclined to leave big bequests to the endowment funds of religious, educational and charitable institutions.

To account for this state of mind the theory was set up that women are deterred from large charitable bequests by overcautious bankers, and that family lawyers "should be educated to tell their clients to return some of their wealth to the social order where they got it." In a good many instances this might be educating lawyers out of profitable business connections. People of great means, being human, are resentful of advice when it does not follow their own inclinations. At all events most of the great accumulations of wealth, if only by distribution generation after generation, must find its way back to the "social order" appealed for.

When it comes to small-scale giving, these speakers would be hard put to it to demonstrate that women's charities, in proportion to the amount of the family funds they handle, or not as great as, or greater than, those of the male providers. Women do 85 per cent of the retail buying, but what house has not in abundance articles peddled from door to door that the housewife has bought only out of a feeling of compassion for the vendor? Men have no monopoly in self-sacrifice for their progeny, and it is safe to say that out of their weekly allowances, when they have any, women give to charity as freely as men.

What Noted People Say

WASHINGTON—Orville Wright looks upon the rapid development of airplanes as on a "world gone crazy."

"I thought that an airplane could fly over an enemy capital, and that no nation would dare to go to war with such a weapon in existence. I didn't know the world would go crazy."

CHICAGO—Former President Herbert Hoover says regulation to prevent abuse has been stretched by the administration into instruments of dictation:

"The policeman on the streets of commerce to expedite the traffic to keep order and stop robbery, now orders our destination and tells us what to do and when we get there."

NEW YORK—Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania says the king and crown prince of Sweden are far more democratic than many rich and socially prominent people in America:

"It would be a fine lesson to those American snobs if they would go to Sweden and see just how royalty acts. Most of the snobs here never met real royalty."

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SANTA MYTH PUZZLES PARENTS

Some parents are puzzled over the matter of Santa Claus. Some, indeed, believe that they should not pretend to the little child that there is one. They suppose that after the child is disillusioned he might have doubt about their truthfulness when they tell him other things they are very eager to have him always believe.

But it does not work that way, except where parents exercise little or no imagination themselves in relation to the child, or where they have employed unskillful ways in helping him adjust himself to the Santa myth. If only an occasional child believed in Santa Claus, the problem obviously would be different. We need to remember that this myth is a part of our folk ways.

For the young child whose parents understand him and how his fancies work, Santa Claus is psychologically sound. He fits into the youngster's normal life of make-believe. We don't need to teach Santa Claus to the toddler. We can just take Santa Claus for granted and the little child will, too.

So we did in our home with our children. Each, in turn, at the age of five or six, asked us whether Santa Claus was a real person. We frankly answered he was not, but that we were playing he was. And then we went on so pretending with the child as long as he chose to do so. After the eldest was disillusioned, we asked him if we should "tell" his sister. "No, no!" he shouted, and he went on playing there was Santa Claus and hanging up his stockings. Years after she finally grew "wise", we asked both the older children together whether the baby six years younger than the sister should be "told".

Children Said "No"

"Oh, no," they yelled in concert. "It means so much to him, so much fun." And they kept on dramatizing Old Saint Nick and appeared to have as much fun at it as their baby brother. Don't you and I still like to lose ourselves in a story or a drama?

The youngest now is 15. We have asked all of them whether our way of pretending about Santa Claus was wholesome. Every one is sure it was and sure, moreover, that his or her children will enjoy Santa Claus.

But some educators would annihilate Santa Claus and fairies, too! Thanks to such, these precious gifts of the imagination will be denied many children.

The damage to the child about fairies and Santa Claus comes only, it seems to me, when we try to force them upon the child after he has outgrown them: when parents fail to be candid as the child wants to know if they are real. And most children on entering school will make such inquiry.

A LIFT OUT OF SORROW

There are times when life seems brutal, when a little thing brings a lump into your throat and you wonder why the living should suffer as they do . . . At such a moment there'd be tears in your eyes if you did not fear being thought sentimental . . . I mean such things as this:

An old, old mother weeping for her bad, lost son, but telling everybody he has always been a good boy, good to her.

A lean old horse which should have been retired to a green pasture years ago, but drawing an old wagon sturdily through the city streets.

A fine lad who wants to be a doctor, but forced to leave school and go to work.

A blind man with a face that is strong; or a big workman, one leg gone above the knee, tramping the highways, asking favors of no one.

A little girl whose clothes aren't quite as good as the others, who is being snubbed, and is too proud to cry about it.

Bessie, the family cow, licking her calf and mooing through the night after it is taken from her.

A burned home, the ashes still smoking, and its green garden still blooming all around it.

A poor dog abandoned on a country road, his tongue hanging out, racing after the automobile of his abandoning master. Loving him still, but wondering what has happened.

A little boy lost in a huge department store, wondering where mother is, his lips quivering, but no tears in his eyes, sure that mother will rescue him at last from all these questioning strangers.

A mother bird, fluttering anxiously, twittering pitifully, about an empty nest, ravaged of her young while she is away seeking food for her young things.

A mother alone, touching and dreaming over the playthings of a dead child; and then putting them resolutely away and going ahead.

Such thoughts, such sights, do bring a lump to the throat. But the courage, the patience, the faith of living creatures renews our strength, lifts up our hearts, makes us proud of being in the ranks of this great undefeated and invincible army of those who suffer but are not beaten to the earth.

It may be heresy, but our observation is that big wicked monopolists aren't the only ones who soak the customer.

Wage-Hour Bill Is Unsuitable. Differs From Roosevelt's Idea. Predictions Vary On Business.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Columnist

ORGANIZED labor desires it known that it is not opposed to wages and hours legislation, but the KIND of bill that congress has concocted. It, in fact, suits neither side.

Representative Lawrence J. Connery of Massachusetts, brother of the late Congressmar William P. Connery, who drafted the bill, stated the view of labor when he requested that his brother's name be removed from the bill as no longer representing his ideals. The measure has been subjected to 125 amendments since its introduction, and now is entirely rewritten.

The bill is quite different from what President Roosevelt proposed in a message last May. The president then suggested that congress set certain labor standards as to minimum hours, maximum hours and the elimination of child labor. The minimum wages were conceived at 40 cents an hour and the hours' maximum was conceived at 40.

As the measure stands, there is to be no law for rudimentary standards. Instead, a board in the labor department—not even a board with the independent power of the national labor relations board—will administer a law which virtually makes the intended minimums the possible maximums. And, even at that, it leaves out the most poorly paid groups of workers—in the seasonal industries. Actually, in the end, comparatively few workers are included.

And for those few, organized labor believes that it may be stepping into a trap. The administrators, if and when the bill is passed, may gradually depress labor below 40 cents an hour and lengthen the working week instead of shortening it—according to labor's view.

On the other hand, industry does not like the bill, although it may put labor into a strait-jacket; industry fights any further government "interference". It prefers to fight it out, as in the past.

BUSINESS

How's business to be in 1938? Well, we've read a score of opinions, here and abroad. No three agree.

Here's an opinion from Roger Babson's organization:

"Business in the first quarter of 1938 will be slow. We expect a pickup to have begun by the second quarter and feel that the final half of 1938 should bring a very sharp improvement. The average for the year should be about equal to the 1937 level."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

A MONUMENT TO VANITY.

Fort Peck Dam, on the Missouri River in Montana, is generally conceded to be the largest construction project ever undertaken by man—larger even than the great pyramid of the Egyptian Pharoah, Cheops. The $200,000,000 of public funds to be spent in it will ultimately result in a vast pile of dirt, ranging as high as 242 feet over the river bed and extending across several miles of Montana prairie land. Behind this monumental upheaval will be created the "largest duck pond in the world."

Laboring taxpayers are told by "liberal" politicians that Ford Peck Dam is justified in the name of humanity. They paint a glowing picture, but here is what the United States army engineer corps has to say of Fort Peck:

"In regard to electric power, Major General Markham, chief of the engineers, recommended that the power plants be not installed for the practical reason that there is no market for power. Fort Peck Dam is located in a sparsely settled region, having an average population of only 2.7 persons per square mile. Stock raising and dry farming are the principal occupations."

The report likewise pointed out that the Dam will be of no material benefit as far as flood control is concerned. And, finally, in regard to improved navigation: "The Missouri river never can and never will be a great originator of traffic. There are no mines, no factories, no other great sources of originating traffic on the river . . . Many years, perhaps decades, must elapse before any considerable traffic will develop, if it ever does."

Stripped of verbal persiflage, Fort Peck Dam becomes nothing but a monument to political vanity, a monument that will make the taxpayers sweat, and whose chief claim to fame is that it is bigger than Cheops' pyramid.

Once Upon Dec. 18th—No violinist's name has lived as long as that of a maker of violins, Antonio Stradivari, who died 200 years ago today at the age of 90.

The violins this illiterate pupil of another great violin maker, Nicolo Amati, produced in his small shop in Cremona, sold in his time for the equivilent of $30 today. Now, a good Stradivari violin, violincello, viola or pochette is likely to be worth $100,000.

Stradivari made with his own hands about 1,200 of them, or which figures out as $1,200,000,000 worth at the present rate!

Of course, not all of them survive today, and not all of those that do survive are worth $100,000. He had his off days, too. But Stradivari's cleverness with wood and glue and varnish, combined with Cremona's climate, very favorable to violin-making, did produce instruments worth millions in money, and billions in pleasure, to the world.

DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS

There's a package on the table which the postman brought today
With a pretty little label trimmed with holly berries gay.
"Do not open until Christmas,"
reads the phrase in letters
gold,
But I wonder does the sender think
I've really grown that old?

"Do not open until Christmas," and that warning's meant for me.
When did I turn into marble and indifferent grow to be?
When did I become so stolid I could even shut my eyes
To the gladness of remembrances and the pleasure of surprise?

I keep arguing with mother:
"Would it be a mortal sin
If I broke the corner open just to see what lies within?"
But she answers: "Not till Christmas! on the table let it stay."
If I take it up to shake it Nellie snatches it away.

I suppose the gracious sender thinks
I'm old enough to wait,
That I'm done with all temptation,
but I'm rising now to state
"Do not open until Christmas," wakes the little boy in me
And old age has yet to cure him of his curiosity.

Christmas Play At Mahoning On Monday-Tuesday

Parents Of Pupils Invited To School For Performance On Tuesday

"Why the Chimes Rang" is the title of the play to be presented by students of the Mahoning Junior high school on Monday and Tuesday mornings of next week.

This Christmas production will first be staged for the pupils at 11 o'clock on Monday morning. Again on Tuesday it will be repeated at 9:30 o'clock, 10:30 o'clock, and again at 11:15 o'clock.

According to Miss Nannie Mitcheltree, principal of the school, the performance at 10:30 o'clock is being presented for the parents of the pupils and anyone from the district who is interested.

The cast for this play is made up of pupils from all grades in the school from the intermediate grades up.

Ward Library Is Nicely Decorated

Gum-Drop Trees And Christmas Books Are Cleverely Displayed In Window

Miss Sarah Mervis, branch librarian, and her staff, took extra pains to make the window of the Mahoningtown branch library look as attractive as possible.

New Christmas decorations have just been placed in the window and are attracting considerable attention from passersby.

Two attractive and cleverly arranged "gum-drop" trees are standing in the window. The trees are painted silver and trimmed with small gum-drops.

Surrounding the trees are a number of books pertaining chiefly to Christmas.

Erecting Storm Door At Library

Workmen were busily engaged Friday afternoon at the Seventh ward branch public library erecting storm doors to keep out the cold winds and snow this year.

The doors will only be temporary structures and will be removed again in the spring.

Cast Of Cantata Choir Is Given

Special Union Christmas Service Sunday Evening At Methodist Church

"The First Christmas" will be presented by 35 vocally talented persons from the Mahoningtown Presbyterian church, the Mahoning Methodist church and the Madison Avenue Christian church Sunday evening. A union service of the three churches will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

The Cantata will begin at 7:45 o'clock and the choir will be in charge of Miss Jane Kyle. Alice McClure will fill the position of organist for the program.

A very worthwhile and interesting program of Christmas hymns has been arranged and will be sung by the following members of the choir:

Mahoning Pupils To Present Play

"Why The Chimes Rang" Will Be Staged On Monday, Tuesday Mornings

"Why the Chimes Rang," an appropriate Christmas play, will be presented on Monday and Tuesday mornings, in the Mahoning school, by approximately 50 students of that institution.

Three performances will be given, the first on Monday morning at 11 o'clock. On Tuesday morning at 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock, the playlets will be presented again: The last performance will be staged for visitors, it was announced.

Designate Drops At Post Office

In order to facilitate the handling of mail going through the Mahoningtown branch post office during the coming week, Edwin McBride, superintendent of the office, has designated the drops for letters and cards.

The top drop in the office is plainly marked for "out-going" mail which means mail going to any other city. Directly under this small slot is a drop for Mahoningtown and New Castle mail.

If customers separate their mail before coming to the office and drop it in the correct slots, it will greatly speed up the Christmas mail handling.

Rural Carrier Has Close Call

While delivering mail to the rural districts of Mahoningtown on Friday Jess Boak had a very close call with death.

He had started to ascend Carson hill, near Moravia road, when his auto slid on the ice and turned completely around. Boak returned to the bottom of the hill to put on chains before again attempting to climb to the top.

Usual practice of Boak at this place is to stop in the road at the foot of the hill and put on the chains, as very little traffic is ever seen on this side road. However, Boak on Friday for some reason, pulled his car off to the side of the road into a field to put on the chains.

He no sooner alighted from the car ,when a heavily loaded coal truck came over the top of the hill at a rapid rate of speed and down the hill. The truck would undoubtedly been unable to stop had Boak's machine been in the road.

LOYAL WORKERS HAVE CHRISTMAS DINNER

Loyal Workers class of the Madison Avenue Christian church held a regular meeting, Friday evening in the church. This was also the annual Christmas party for the class, and started with a delicious dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

An attractively decorated Christmas tree was just loaded with gifts which were later exchanged by the members. During a short business meeting following officers were elected for the new year:

President C. H. Clark: vice president, Mrs. Howard Snyder; secretary, Mrs. C. H. Clark and treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth Walters. Mrs. W. G. Wilkinson is teacher of the class and she was presented with a nice gift of appreciation from the members.

The dinner was served by Mrs. C. H. Clark, committee, chairman and her aides.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Madison Avenue Christian church, West Madison avenue. Rev. Milton E. Shearer, pastor; Robert Park, superintendent; Mrs. C. H. Clark, pianist.

Bible school at 9:45 o'clock.

Morning worship at 10:45 o'clock, when the Christmas program, entitled "Memories of Bethlehem," will be presented.

Christian Endeavor at 6:45 o'clock will be under the leadership of Grace Kelley.

Union service at 7:45 o'clock in the Methodist church, at which time a Christmas cantata will be sung by the union choir.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

Sunday school will begin at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning at the Mahoningtown Presbyterian church with the superintendent, Arthur H. Walker, in charge.

"The Shepherds and the Wise Men" will be the topic used by Rev. D. C. Schnebly at the morning service, beginning at 11 o'clock.

Junior Christian Endeavor meeting will be at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Senior Christian Endeavor society will meet at 7 o'clock followed by the union service in the Mahoning Methodist church at 7:45 o'clock.

have no basic value. Some persons say that this huge bogged-down debt blinded his eyes before he had more than glanced at the building, and the exertion stopped his heart. Thus he himself passed at 74 to the most beautiful of all the tombs ever constructed—the Taj Mahal. Both in the East and the West it is regarded as the most architecturally—perfect structure extant.

The tomb was of Jahan's empress's own idea. As she died at 31, after having borne 14 children, she made two requests: That Jahan never marry again, and that he erect over her such a mausoleum that its glories would keep her memory alive after all other earthly institutions had been forgotten.

Her embalmed body lay in an ordinary tomb for 17 years, while Taj Mahal was being built. So much money did Jahan lavish upon it, (In present day values about $80,000,000), that when it was rumored that Jahan intended to build another of similar proportions for himself, his own son deposed him from the throne and threw him into prison -

On Other Dec. 19ths.—1606—Capt. Christopher Newport, commanding three ships, sailed away from London with 105 emigrants including Capt. John Smith, for the new land in the West. These men established Virginia. The expedition was an unemployment relief measure!

1777—Washington's army went into winter quarters at Valley Forge.

1800—John Jay refused to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

1894—Ford Cuthbert Frick, president of the National Baseball League, was born. Other Dec. 19th birthdays: Gerald P. Ney, b. 1892, senator from North Dakota; Fritz Reiner, b. 1883 symphony orchestra conductor.

1924—William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers of America, was elected President of the American Federation of Labor.

was on equipment long ago obsolete. But much of it was for nothing, for thin air, figures disclosed in the investigation of senate committee for interstate commerce show.

What can be done? A proposal has been made in New York to exchange bonds for common stock—let everybody take a chance as a common stockholder.

President Roosevelt has declared for continued private ownership. But if the men dominating the railroads continue to demand their pound of flesh from a weakening body economic, be forced by economic pressure to take the rail lines and mercilessly squeeze out the water and end uneconomic competition. The rails are one industry in which competition (with each other) spells doom. (Economists say there are other industries, too.)

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—Nineteen-year-old Wendell Forrest Bowers, accused fugitive killer of Mrs. Wilma Valerie Carpenter, appeared today to have eluded the extensive dragnet spread by police and G-men.

Despite police assurances that Bowers' capture was "only a question of time," searchers found the trail colder than any time since Miss Mary Griffin, 22, identified the erstwhile reformatory inmate as the robber-murderer who tried to assault her after killing the pretty blonde widow in her Camp Hill residence Monday.

Identified By Woman

The identification, made by the young woman as she lay in a Philadelphia hospital recovering from a blow on the head, set into motion a vast manhunt. Every policeman in the United States was enlisted in the search.

Informed by criminologists that Bowers is the type of youthful criminal who "can't stay out of trouble," District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie, of Montgomery county, clung to the conviction that the missing boy soon will be apprehended.

AROUND CITY HALL

City Clerk C. Ed. Brown and Chief of police Ralph A. Criswell each week count the nickels collected from parking meters here. Brown has a counting machine. After the nickels have been counted Criswell rolls them into packages.

Due to Christmas decorations being placed high on poles this holiday season it is not likely that any of the bulbs will be stolen. In past years city officials punished persons for stealing the decorations.

As soon as snow falls here John Anderson or his assistants who perform janitor duties at city hall clean the sidewalks to prevent accident to any pedestrian on sidewalks along the city building.

Persons who owe delinquent 1936 personal taxes will receive notices of levy on their goods unless they pay before January 1, according to City Treasurer C. C. McKibben.

Let us resolve to Be of Good Courage,
Be Strong—

in the faith that admits no failures;

in the hope of better things to come;

in the loyalty of human relations that conquers adversity;

Then indeed will we have a NEW NEW CASTLE bonded together by a common endeavor, and a united effort . . . . . .

THE REASON FOR THESE ADVERTISEMENTS

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is composed of young men who believe that in order to stay in New Castle they must help create the opportunity for their own individual advancement. In wrestling with our problem we came to the conclusion that community action was necessary which, to be successful, should be founded on those simple and basic principles embodied in Faith, Hope, Loyalty, Courage, Friendliness, Thrift and Industry.

In other words a positive and constructive individual mental attitude.

Upon such a foundation we believe there can be erected an organization which shall be truly representative of every walk of life in our community—the North, the South, the East, the West, the high, the low, and those in between—whose approach to community problems shall be in a friendly way, and who shall join hands in constructively advancing the good of all, for it is a self-evident fact that no one individual can accomplish anything constructive without in some degree benefiting all, and vice versa.

We are prepared to cooperate in any movement which has for its purpose concerted and constructive action.

We believe that friendly cooperation and constructive community action is the answer to New Castle's present economic situation.

TO THE BEST OF OUR ABILITY WE PROPOSE TO PROVIDE THAT ACTION.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

GOOD CARE NEEDED BY FARM EWE FLOCK

Most farm flocks are approaching the winter season low in flesh. This is caused by a very heavy infestation of internal parasites.

These breeding ewes should be treated every month during the fall and winter. A little grain fed during the early part of the winter will pay large dividends. This will build up resistance to parasites on the part of the breeding ewe and insure a good, strong lamb crop next spring.

The wise shepherd feeds a little grain over the entire winter season. A good legume roughage, such as clover, alfalfa, or soybean hay, makes a splendid winter feed. If legume hay is not available, it is essential that some bran or oil meal be added to the grain ration. The importance of a legume hay for breeding ewes is recognized by sheepmen everywhere.

The intelligent farmer will avoid heavy losses this winter and next spring by giving his flock a little extra care during the winter.

FEED LAYING BIRDS TO KEEP UP BODY WEIGHT

Many flocks of pullets are thin at present because they are not eating sufficient feed. Birds in this condition are likely to go into a molt and out of production at any time.

It is a very good practice for the poultrymen to check on the body weight of their birds at regular intervals. Some make it a practice of putting some paint on a few birds so that they can be weighed at regular intervals. Others just handle a few of their birds as they remove the eggs from the nest or else catch a few birds on the floor.

A bird in good condition will have a reserve supply of meat on the breast. If the breast bone is sharp and not well meated, the poultryman should try to increase the feed intake of his birds. Unless birds eat large quantities of feed they cannot maintain body weight and produce heavily.

Some poultrymen make a practice of feeding their birds all the grain they will eat at night and about one-half that amount in the morning. Fresh mash is usually fed each day. Increased feed intake usually can be obtained by stirring the mash in the feeders on each trip through the pen. The use of moist mash or flesning pellets at noon each day will also increase total feed intake.

The size of bird, type of house (heated or unheated), rate of production, and use of lights are all factors which must be taken into consideration when figuring feed intake. A hundred average sized Leghorns laying 50 per cent or better should be consuming 25 pounds or more of feed per 100 birds a day. This figure may be taken as a guide but the condition of each individual flock must be considered when it is being fed.

NEW POTATO DISEASE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS

Bacterial wilt is a new disease of potatoes which appeared in Lehigh County this year.

The disease was present in all fields planted with seed from a carload of Katahdin potatoes obtained from Maine. The disease has been present in Maine and also in Canada.

Losses as high as 100 bushels an acre were suffered in Lehigh County. The disease appeared as wilt of the vines early in the season and rot of the tubers at harvest time and in storage.

Growers are urged to be careful about getting their seed potatoes so that the disease will not be introduced.

GIVE HANDS SPECIAL CARE IN COLD WEATHER

Here comes winter, and with it cold, rough hands unless they are properly cared for.

The hands respond more quickly to good care than any other part of the body. They will likewise show signs of abuse if not cared for, so the ounce of prevention comes first.

Wear warm gloves when out-of-doors if you want to avoid chapped hands. Soft cotton gloves worn while doing the dusting or cleaning often prevents scratches, cuts, and broken nails, as well as protecting the hands from grime and dirt. Rubber gloves are a help for the woman whose hands are often in soapy water.

Wash the hands in warm, not hot, water, using a mild soap. Take time to dry them thoroughly and use a hand lotion, messaging it into the hands. With the towel push the cuticle back gently. If the skin is dry and the cuticle breaks easily, rub it occasionally with a bit of cold cream or vaseline.

Once or twice a week give yourself a thorough manicure. Select a time when you can sit down and relax while you do it. Have your equipment assembled. The essentials are a bowl of warm soapy water, preferably soft water, nail brush, file, emery board, orangewood stick, nail scissors, and hand lotion or cream.

The important extras—essentials to some—are nail polish, either pastel, powder, or liquid, polish remover, white pencil, and nail buffer. With compact manicuring sets sold everywhere today it is no task or expense to have one.

It may not be necessary to file the nails each day, but do not let them grow extremely long. File the nails to a neat oval, filing them from the side toward the tip of the nail. Massage with a bit of oil or cold cream and remove any strains with lemon juice. Soak the finger tips in the warm soapy water for a few minutes and scrub with the nail brush.

Dry them, apply a bit of vaseline or cold cream to the cuticle, and use the broad end of the orangewood stick gently to push the cuticle back until the half-moons show. If it is necessary, use a cuticle remover, washing it off as soon as the nail is smooth. The cuticle should never be cut except for trimming the loose ends at the side of the nail.

If desired, a bleach or white pencil may be used under the tips of the nails. Your choice of polish may be the liquid variety. If so, put it on with even strokes of the brush, beginning above the half-moons. With the towel or bit of cotton remove it from the tip of the nail. A bit of oil applied around the cuticle will counteract the drying effect of the polish.

Many women prefer the powder or paste variety of polish, rubbing the nails with a buffer or a rough dry towel. An application of your favorite hand lotion completes the manicure.

INTERESTING FACTS ON EXTENSION ANNOUNCED

In the 25 years that agricultural extension work has been conducted in Pennsylvania counties many valuable contributions have been made to the farming industry.

The value of alfalfa and soybean hay for dairy cattle feeding has been demonstrated. In five years the acreage increased sufficiently on Pennsylvania farms to save dairymen $2,308,683 annually in the purchase of protein concentrates.

Since 1920 about 100,000 acres of waste land have been planted to forest trees. More than 400 result demonstrations are now established, with practically every county benefiting.

Many farmers and community organizations are interested in improving the appearance around their buildings. There are 320 farmstead and community demonstrations of ornamental planting under supervision in the state.

Thirteen years of work on raspberry diseases has resulted in maintaining 75 per cent of the plantings commercially free of serious raspberry diseases.

Record keeping has shown that less than 120 eggs per hen per year is unprofitable. Hens averaging 121 to 150 eggs made 71 cents profit each and hens producing more than 150 eggs made a profit of $1.27 each.

More than 800 sash greenhouses have been built from plans designed by the extension service.

USEFUL KITCHEN GIFTS SAVE TIME AND ENERGY

Spread Christmas throughout the year with useful kitchen gifts. Gifts which can be used daily to help mother save energy and time in the kitchen are worthwhile.

Observe the equipment she has on hand and select a piece which she could use but does not have, suggests Miss Mary Vogle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence County.

Often some of the smaller inexpensive articles which are used daily are missing in the kitchen. A measuring cup with a wooden handle, a wooden spoon, a spatula, and a can opener are essential. A paring knife with a good hard steel edge can be purchased for about 45 cents and will outlast several cheap ones. Father or son could make knife rack out of scrap lumber to hold this good knife. A dish drainer will make dish washing a more pleasant task. If the family's favorite dessert is pie, a pastry blender, flour sifter, pastry cloth, or an oven thermometer will all help to make pies more quickly.

A good egg beater is always a welcome gift. Before buying one, see that the handle and crank can be comfortably gripped and turned. Four blades in the dasher are more effective than two. The drive wheel should have cogs that work easily and are protected by a guard.

A kitchen stool with a back piece is something mother will enjoy having. She can rest her back when paring potatoes or doing other kitchen tasks.

New things for the kitchen are oil silk bags to hold vegetables and covers to put on bowls in the refrigerator.

While mothers always appreciate any gift the children and father give, it is much better to give a useful article and one which will make her work easier.

PRESSURE COOKERY FOR STEAM PUDDING

In the article "Making Cakes and Cookies for the Holiday Season" published last week, the use of a Pressure Cooker for steam puddings was mentioned. Some questions have come to the attention of Miss Mary Vogle, Home Economics Extension Worker for Lawrence County concerning the procedure used.

Some prefer to leave the pet-cock open and use the cooker as a steamer. This would require the same length of time as ordinary steaming.

The other method suggested would bring the pressure up to ten pounds very slowly. Take at least fifteen minutes to reach that point. This gives the pudding time to rise or expand. Thirty minutes under ten pounds pressure is usually sufficient time for cooking the average size pudding.

The mold used should be tightly covered. Oiled paper securely tied over the surface may answer the purpose. The type of mold with the tube through the center will insure a thorough cooking of the center of the product.

Too little sleep or irregularity in going to sleep often causes malnutrition in children. A warm bath before bedtime for cleansing and relaxation, is an inducement to sleep.

Japan Seeks To Guard Neutrals From Bombings

Mounting Protests Against Japanese Attacks To Bring Results

FRAMING REPLY TO U. S. PROTESTS

Hope Any Recurrence Of American-Japanese Crisis Will Be Prevented

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Dec. 18.—Confronted with mounting protests against Japanese attacks on foreign ships in China, Nippon's Imperial Conference—composed of the nation's highest authorities—prepared today for definite action to prevent any recurrence of the present American-Japanese crisis.

The Imperial Conference, in which it has been suggested Emperor Hirohito participate, is scheduled to receive reports from the army and navy on ways and means of preventing further assaults like that in which Nipponese planes bombed and sank the United States Gunboat Panay and three American oil vessels in the Yangtze river.

Seek To Guard Foreigners

Specifically, a way will be sought to prevent Japanese airman and junior officers from disregarding strict orders not to endanger the lives of foreign nationals or the property and interests of third powers in China.

Plans for what appeared to be a mighty effort to end the series of incidents which have imperilled Japan's relations with the United States and Britain were rushed after the Japanese government was informed of official information received in Washington that the Panay had been machine-gunned as well as bombed.

This information was turned over to the Japanese foreign office by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to aid the authorities here in framing their reply to the latest note of protest.

The new batch of charges, stating the crew of the Panay was attacked and machine-gunned by river patrols as they sought to escape from the sinking gunboat, was based on information furnished at Shanghai by survivors and eye-witnesses and forwarded to Washington.

THREE-ACT COMEDY DRAMATICS AT BEST

test a trip to Havana for herself and husband, their sixteen-year-old son, Paul, ambitious as Caesar and with his head crammed full of Bright Ideas, thought it his grand opportunity to infuse some young blood into his father's shoe store business.

While his parents were away, Paul aided by his twin sister and the other members of "The Secret Seven," take command of the shoe store, much to the consternation of Mr. Hollis' young assistant, George Gordon, who had been left at the helm. Three hundred dollars are spent in hiring an orchestra, advertising and presenting a style show, and when its all over, very few shoes had been sold, and Paul's ego was considerably deflated. On top of the other troubles, the twin's older sister, Marjorie, announces her intention of marrying Crandal Smythe, whom "The Secret Seven" suspects is a viper and not the scion of a wealthy family that he claims to be.

The upshot is that, in the midst of despair, the sun shines. Mother and Father Hollis who had got wind of the goings-on and had returned, discover that their son's splurge in the business world resulted in a handsome offer from a man who wanted to buy the store. And at the same time the suspicions of "The Secret Seven" are substantiated by the arrest of Smythe as a forger. Marjorie finds refuge in the arms of her true love, George Gordon, and everything ends happily.

Excellent Performances

As Paul Hollis, James Howley was superb. He played the part with a humorous elegance that was in itself enough to make the show a success. In the same high calibre were the performances of his twin sister, Betty Jane Hulme, who was a little bit independent but true to Paul even against her better judgement, and his older sister, played by Naomi Kennedy in such a charming manner.

Jean Waddington and Fred Allen as the mother and father were well cast. They took care of their lines expertly and their's was a fine portrayal of typical middle-class American parents. Hilda, a Swedish hired girl, was handled in a fine manner by Cecelia Turner. When she threw up her hands in despair while getting the Hollises packed for Havana, she drew one of the big laughs of the show.

Dick Stevenson as the suspected racketeer, Crandal Smythe, made a smooth villian. He did no over-acting and its too bad the high school is going to lose him in January. Paul Schooley, as the earnest young man left in charge of the shoe store, was one of the few serious characters in the cast. His portrayal was consistent and natural. Helen Muse made a lively nine-year-old member of the Hollis family, Snookie, whose main interest was shooting people with a toy gun.

Lewis Pearsall, who just about stole the high school play earlier in the semester with his portrayal of a tough street urchin, scored again last night as a member of "The Secret Seven." He gave one of the best performances this reviewer has ever seen. Other members of the seven, Sara Jane Cleland, Bob MacNeil, Ruth MacNab and Dorothy Magill, all gave excellent support.

Model Airplane Show At Union High On Friday

Union High Aviation Club Stages Novel Program For Fellow Classmates

Breath-taking and thrilling was the model airplane show staged by members of the U-High Birdmen club, at Union Township High school, Friday afternoon.

Large and small flying models of airplanes were set free from the stage of the school auditorium and displayed their worth and the owner's ingenuity by flying gracefully over the heads of the seated audience.

This club is composed of about 25 members, headed by Joseph Thompson, faculty supervisor, and James Dean, president. Dean was in charge of the program.

Approximately 60 ships, flying and scale models were on display at the show. Features of the show included two gasoline models which were built by James Dean and Thomas Boyd. These ships were started on the stage, but due to their large size were not flown in the building.

Another feature was an exhibit of planes, models of famous ships, built in the early years of aviation. These too were flying models and were used in the program.

Included on the program was a short aviation playlet, written by one of the club members and presented by Eugene Kerr and James Dean. No crack-ups occured during the entire show, the ships being well constructed and carefully flown to prevent any accidents.

Those taking part in the show included the following:

James Dean, Gene Kerr, Lee McClenahan, Harold Wright, Bill Dean, Donald Kerr, Thaddeus Laskey, Thomas Boyd and Charles Russell. Other members of the club were members of the audience as spectators

The U-High Birdmen will present this program for the Union Parent-Teachers association on January 17, in the school.

Nocera Is Star Of Pre-Season Game With 11 Of New Castle Points

ERIE EAST HERE ON NEXT TUESDAY

New Castle high school "Red Devils" basketball team made it two straight pre-season victories last night at Farrell by taking a 24 to 21 encounter over a strong Farrell high quintet. Victor "Blackie" Nocera" led the scoring for the locals with 11 of the points.

The end of the first period found the "Red Devils" trailing 10 to 8, but at the half the Farrell boys had fallen by the wayside and it was 15 to 14 in favor of New Castle. The end of the third stanza found the teams tied up at 17-17. In the fourth and final period, the New Castle boys took a big lead when Nocera opened up with a fine scoring attack.

Nocera Stars.

Nocera had four field goals and three fouls for the locals to be the high point-getter. "Cash" Koszela had four of the points, with the rest of the points being rather well divided.

For the Farrell team the work of Brysh, Thomas and Hetra was by far the best, with 15 of the points between them.

Baer Defeats Eddie Hogan

Buddy Baer Earns Right To Meet Joe Louis In Bout February 23rd

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Buddy Baer, the straight man of the brother act, knocked out Eddie Hogan, of Waterbury, Conn., in the third round at Madison Square Garden last night, apparently for the right to meet Joe Louis here on February 23, and I was going to add that Baer thus would be the first outright bozo ever to fight for the world's heavyweight championship. But that wouldn't be exactly right.

In the first place, Baer wasn't certain this morning, and neither was manager Ancil Hoffman, whether he wanted to take the Louis match at this stage. In the second, we've even had outright bozos holding the heavyweight championship.

I might even add a third exception to the general effect that Buddy, off his performance last night, is getting to be unreliable as a "bum," meaning one you can really count on. There were times against Hogan in fact, when he looked the part of a pretty fair country heavyweight, although, at that, almost any sapolio can look good against a "nothing" prize fighter. Hogan can't fight good enough to lick the average police court matron.

Shellogg Named Notre Dame Captain

ALEX SHELLOGG

(International News Service)

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Dec. 18.—The responsibility of captaining the 1938 Notre Dame football team rested on the powerful shoulders of right tackle Alex Shellogg today.

Shellogg, height 6 feet one inch, weight 204 pounds, a junior, is from New Castle, Pa.

Shellogg, a resident of Chartes street, proved one of the greatest linesmen in the history of New Castle high. Throughout the season, Shellogg played tackle for the Fighting Irish. He was one of the outstanding members of the team during the season. Shellogg is the first New Castle young man to earn a varsity berth at Notre Dame, let alone the first Lawrence Countian to captain the famous Irish eleven.

During the past year Shellogg was playing alongside of Captain Charles Sweeney, named by many papers for All-American honors. Shellogg in the Minnesota game broke up many plays, also in the Army game. Together with Sweeney he helped to block a Northwestern punt that gave the Irish their stunning victory.

Shellogg with his brother Fred graduated here in the class of 1934. They have been on the Notre Dame team three years, serving one year on the freshman team.

Tech Defeats Titans 43-35

Tech Leads From Very Outset Of Game At Pittsburgh Friday Night

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18.—Carnegie Tech's Scottie basketball team won from Westminster College here last night at Tech gym, 43 to 35, in a rousing floor battle. The Techers took an early lead and held it throughout the game. The Titans rallied in the closing minutes, but could not catch the Hannum-coached five.

Tech Leads

The end of the first half found the Tech team out in front 20 to 17. The play in this stanza was fast and furious. With eight minutes of the second half gone, Captain Johnny Krivosh, of the Westminster team, was banished on four personals. This seemed to be a bad break for the Titans. Miller and Demo started a scoring rally late in the game and if more time had remained might have worried the Techers, but the whistle blew ending the game with the Tech team eight points in front.

Two of the Tech team, W. Miller and Miskevics, were chased by four personals. Tech missed six free throws, while the visitors from up New Wilmington way, missed 12 charity chances. Demo and Miller led the Titans with 22 of the points. For Tech it was Stark and Cratsley with the most of the points.

Jacobs Would Sell For Cool Million Dollars

Would Sell Rights To Schmeling-Louis Fight To Berlin For Big Sum

POSSIBILITY IS VERY REMOTE

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Thoughtfully giving the guy two days at sea in which to attain a high degree of composure, promoter Mike Jacobs abruptly tilted his asking-price to Germany and on Schmeling-Louis heavyweight championship bout today to $1,000,000 round and resolute dollars. This was one of two new conditions that Mr. Jacobs has thought up all by himself, since Schmeling sailed on the Europa on Tuesday night.

The other was that Louis would be allowed to take his title into Berlin only in the event that the Germans agreed to George Blake, of Los Angeles, as the referee and sole official at the ringside.

In other words, if there was a decision to be made, he alone would make it. Briefly, there will be no judges—or there will be no Berlin fight.

Don't Be Mislead

As to the latter possibility, don't let anybody lead you astray about Promoter Jacobs' intentions. His first idea on Schmeling and Louis is Berlin and all that money he thinks he can get. As a matter of fact, if the gentleman and his associates ever collect the "if" money they're thinking about in this connection, they're likely to retire undefeated.

That first price of $750,000 to be split between Promotor Jacobs and fighter Louis is now out, of course, like a broken light.

It was tossed off in a moment of spirited banter by Promoter Jacobs while he had his mind on other things and before he realized (a) that the Berlin stadium can seat a world's record boxing crowd of 150,000; (b) that $100 for ringside seats is probable and $150 for, say, the first ten rows is possible; (c) that that gate under these circumstances must beat $2,000,000.

TALES IN TIDBITS

By BILL BRAUCHER

Central Press Sports Editor

The outstanding sports performer of 1937? That's easy—red-haired, freckled Donald Budge, the California Comet! Not only for one great deed, making it possible for the United States to recover the Davis cup lost 10 years ago, but for a dozen mighty feats.

If you like a horse, take War Admiral, of course. The son of Big Red won the Derby, Preakness, Belmont—and everything else he was asked to win. His score for the year is 100 per cent.

Budge's score is 100 per cent, too. Consider the year he has been through. First he conquered the international stars of the tennis world at Wimbledon, becoming the first American since 1932 to capture the British crown, a victory emblematic of world supremacy. Again at Forest Hills he met the greatest players in the world, and turned them back. The Davis cup conquest was not one triumph, but a half dozen. Before the United States team even got to first base the Australians had to be taken care of. After the Australians came the thrilling sets with Germany in which Budge's racquet again turned the tide in favor of the U. S. A. Finally the British. Truly his series of performances was amazing.

And now, instead of accepting a fat professional offer, Budge elects to remain an amateur for another year to help the home team to defend the world trophy. Though your correspondent never was a tennis enthusiast, we'll have to hand it to Budge as greatest of them all.

Plenty Of Stars

The year has been replete with grand performances. War Admiral and Seabiscuit stand out on the turf. The great trotters Greyhound and Shirley Hanover, winner of the Hambletonian, rule the harness horse world.

But for accomplishments by our two-legged creatures, I believe Ralph Guldahl's great job in winning the National Open must be placed close behind the sterling showing of Budge. Coming into the homestretch Guldahl was beaten. Sam Snead seemed to have the open in his grasp, with a score of 283, within one stroke of the all-time record for the event. Snead himself shot unbelievable golf, and it required something almost miraculous to match him. Guldahl, in the face of overwhelming odds, never wavered. When he sank his last putt for a record-shattering score of 281, he set a mark that probably will stand for years.

Whizzer White's sensational football deeds come next in my book. Right alongside of him, as far as football is concerned, must be rated the achievements of Sammy Baugh in his first year as a professional gridder.

Louis Below Armstrong

Henry Armstrong, the dusky demon who has knocked out just about everybody in his class, must be ranked high among 1937 performers. So must Denny Shute, who for the second straight year won the Professional Golfers' championship, and Johnny Goodman, who finally crashed to the national amateur title after years of trying.

Joe Louis? Well, if he had beaten Jack Dempsey in his prime, or Max Schmeling, he'd be up there, too. But his defeat of the aging Braddock cannot be regarded as epochal.

It's hard to rate the whole band by numbers, because each sport calls for a different kind of skill. But there is hardly any room for doubt about Budge. He's tops.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Did you hear the latest . . . one of our own New Castle boys has made a name for himself at good old Notre Dame . . . that my friends in case you haven't heard is the little boy, Alex Sheilogg of 29 W. Charters street . . . he has been elected football captain for the 1938 team . . . congratulations Alex . . . let's see you lead them on to a new high . . . you can do it.

Last night I witnessed one of the greatest proformances that has ever been presented from the stage of the Senior High School . . . it was the play "Life Begins At Sixteen" . . . it was superb and (I can't find words to express the true feeling) . . . we might add that it was the greatest play since the one presented by the January class of '34 . . . those of you who missed last night's performance, missed a great show . . . those kids should make good out in the wide, wide world . . . congratulations to every member of the cast.

Rain, rain and more rain . . . history is repeating itself . . . it was about a year ago that we had heavy rains and were threatened with a flood . . . if this rain keeps up it looks like one again . . . we here in New Castle have very little to worry about but for the sake of the folks down the valley we hope that it won't happen again.

* * *

It's getting nearer and nearer to that great time of the year . . . Christmas . . . a time when everyone should stop and think over the past . . . have you done your best toward your fellow man . . . it's also a time for giving but be sure you give with an honest feeling and not just for the fact of giving.

A few weeks ago we sent out a call for the local artists to get in touch with this desk . . . we have to date several communications but we feel that some are feeling too modest . . . again we ask that you send in your name and address . . . we are planning on an art show after Christmas and we hope to have all artists cooperate.

Do your letters carry a Christmas Seal . . . help to save a life by buying some Seals.

"No, sir," said the barber as he lathered his customer's face. "I used to give credit, but nobody asks for it now."

"Oh," said the customer," why is that?"

"Well, I got tired of keeping books and so whenever a man asked for credit I used to put a little nick in his nose with the razor and kept tally that way. Nowadays they all seem to prefer paying on the nail."

The customer fidgeted in his chair, and then felt his pocket.

"I suppose," he said, "you have no objections to being paid in advance?"

Stronger Tone Seen In Market

Trading Slow But Gains Are Made By Stock Leaders This Morning

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The stock market developed a stronger tone today after yesterday's reaction. Trading was very slow, however, as the pre-holiday influences began to get to work.

Gains in leaders ran to 2 points and more at their highs. The list opened firm and moved ahead. There was some profit-taking at the beginning of the second hour but this was easily absorbed. Closing prices were near their highs.

Steels were leaders on the advance. Bethlehem was up nearly 2 points and U. S. Steel well over a point. The others were fractionally better. Declining production was ignored and offset by the hope of a sizeable recovery after the turn of the year.

Dome Mines rose 2 points to a new high in advance of the directors meeting Monday when a 2 for 1 splitup is anticipated. Other golds were up slightly. Coppers strengthened for gains running to a point as the navy called for bids on a large amount of copper.

Motors continued to reflect speculative neglect. Chrysler and General Motors improved but gains were small. Rails likewise were not prominent in the dealings with small advances the rule. Utilities were as dull.

Higher-priced issues scored some sizeable gains. Westinghouse advanced 2 points, and Johns Manville and Eastman Kodak as much. In the chemicals, Allied and Union Carbide gained a point each with DuPont close behind.

Farm implements were mixed but mail orders were steady. Most rail equipments advanced. Toward the close the aviations perked up, led by Douglas, Boeing and United Aircraft.

Philip Morris gained a point in the tobaccos and Ligget & Myers lost as much. Elsewhere the tone was firm.

Foreign exchanges continued their dull movements with the dollar off slightly. The bond market was firm and colorless, dealings falling to a low ebb. Prices were mixed in Amsterdam, the only market open abroad.

Wheat steadied after its downtrend of the last few days. Cotton was stronger.

Will Brighten Lives Of Needy Family By Giving Christmas Gifts And Toys

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 18.—A troop of Brownies, girls of the prescout age, was organized here a year ago and during the year they have accomplished many worthwhile objectives that they may well be proud of.

Nature study, hikes, singing, folk dancing, handicraft, dramatization of stories and occasional parties each have their place in the Brownies' schedule and add enjoyment and knowledge to the lives of the members. Their leader is called Brown Owl and their assistant, Tawny Owl.

Last evening they devoted the evening to wrapping gifts of toys and other gifts that will be given to a poor family that the Brownies have selected to add cheer and happiness to their lives for the Christmas season.

Fifteen members are included in the Brownies roster and six new members were added last evening, Betty Hillman, Shirley Barkley, Patty Baxter, Corrine Ewing, Polly Mathews and Jane Ubelhart.

Ellwood Tops Beaver 43 To 11

Jones, Bianco, Debortoli, Greco And Robuck Are High Scorers

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 18.—After leading Beaver high school basketeers by only one point in the opening period, Ellwood City high school basketball team shifted into high gear, running roughshod over their opponents during the remaining three quarters winning by a lopsided score of 43 to 11, at Lincoln court, Friday evening.

Tommy Jones, a substitute forward that made a name for himself in the football world last fall, was the high scorer with five field goals and a free throw to his credit. Bianco was just behind with four goals and a free point. Debortoli, Greco and Robuck each added six points of the total score.

Roland was high for Beaver with four goals and one foul amassing nine of Beaver's 11 points. Neither team was impressive from the charity line. Ellwood made only five out of 14 chances count and Beaver made only three out of a possible 16.

The Reserves added another victory to their unbroken list by again defeating the Beaver Reserves by a score of 37 to 8. Rubino, Ellwood's forward, was outstanding with six field goals and Pishioneri was second high with eight points to his credit.

Only one game is scheduled for next week and that on Wednesday night when the locals will pay a return visit to Monaca High school

Night Riding Is Stimulating

McIntyre Likes Clickety-Click Of Train Wheels And Smell Of Train Smoke

REACTIONS OF TRIP DESCRIBED

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—This column is being scribbled on a pad during a sleeper jump from Chicago. One of those hobbledehoy skip-jack things to fit in with the lurches of the train. I'm propped up against mountainous pillows and out the window whirls a shadowy world of arabesques.

O. O. McIntyre

Nothing is more stimulating to me than the clickety-clack of train wheels in the night. And I know no other who relishes the aroma of train smoke. There is zest, too, in gliding under the shed of a depot in a strange city, hesitating a moment and roaring on.

Something marks the railroad and depot employees. They seem to live always on the brink of adventure. I've even envied the lonely station master hunched over his telegraph instrument as we flashed by some isolated out-post. His very next moment may be packed with drama.

Another tingle for me on a train journey is the lighted diner at the evening meal. All of us strain not to appear self conscious as we study one another covertly between bites. Generally we can spot the newly-weds. Their offhand casualness is entirely too studied.

One thing that always tastes better on trains and usually spangles every diner menu is those little stuffed pickled dinguses impaled on toothpicks, called gherkins. Gustatory memories: The grilled pompano on the New Orleans specials. The mountain trout in the high country of Colorado. The peaches in cream in Georgia and the Carolinas during the season. And the wilted lettuce salad with Gruyere on the boat trains to Paris.

George Ade in one of his parodies stopped many from calling Pullman porters George. My tag is Doc. To me the porter can make or ruin a trip. Most of us are fretful journeying and count much on the little gestures—the extra pillow, the prompt serving of table water and the equally prompt making up of berth. I employ the traveled Bruno Lessing's method with waiters in tipping porters. And it should be the credo of all travelers. Bum service, no tip. Fair service, fair tip. Excellent service, excellent fee. So long as tipping is regarded as one of the necessary evils it can be met best with that sort of team-work.

In the little green hammock strung across the window is a mystery story I picked up in the La Salle street station for the trip to New York. I bought it solely on account of its garish jacket. One—at least this one—wants blood and thunder literature on a night train ride. This has a dripping dagger slant-wise across the page. Filligreed in the background a horse-drawn Victoria leaving the brilliantly lit marquee of a night club. The face of a beautiful woman in decolette gown shows through the oval side window, a Maxine Elliott face glancing back in terror. There seems to be gobs of blood on the moon and I'll be knee deep in intrigue as we rush through the night.

Also in the green hammock is a shiny red apple, a shaker of salt and a bottle of charged water. Oddly, I like charged water on trains only, just as I enjoy duck on ocean liners only. The majority of stops I know tonight by a mere look out the window, having made the jaunt so often. John Cuneo, the printing tycoon in Chicago, has made so many of these trips he can without looking up, day or night, tell exactly where the train is and whether or not it's on time.

They were talking in the smoker after dinner about a certain person without apparent qualifications being chosen for a high position in the political world. One prosperous looking Chicagoian observed: "How frequently such positions seem to be filled by the eenie, meenie, minie, moe method." It reminded him of the church choir in which he sang when a boy. The voices were all about the same, but the biggest boy was assigned to the bass, the littlest to the tenor, while the prettiest girl always sang soprano and the less glamourous sister got the alto role. There are a lot of inefficient people thus "moed" into jobs, he thought. Indeed I feel rather "eenied" myself at times.

We have never heard anyone who could shout "'Board" with that quick and piercing up-take like a conductor. It is one of the cheerios of railroading.

Warns On Filing For State Exams

Department Of Public Assistance Has 5,000 Jobs To Fill

CONFUSED BY SOME WITH OTHER TESTS

Merit system examinations for some 5,000 positions which will be open under the state's new Department of Public Assistance, to be conducted in coming weeks in New Castle and a group of other cities in the state, should not be confused with the examinations for the jobs under the new Unemployment Compensation Division and Employment Service, Fred Zappolo, executive director of the employment board of the Department of Public Assistance, wrote The News, today.

"My attention," Mr. Zappolo said, "has been brought to the fact that many people are confusing these jobs (Department of Public Assistance jobs) with the ones for the Unemployment Compensation Division and Employment Service."

He said applicants filing for the Unemployment Compensation division must file again for the Department of Public Assistance tests.

Three distinct dates, January 8, January 15 and January 22, have been announced as test dates for those applying for Department of Public Assistance posts.

That department, Zappolo pointed out, will take over the work of the State Emergency Relief board, the county poor boards and the mother's assistance groups.

Applicants for Department of Public Assistance jobs must be filed, it is said, by December 22. The Employment board's office is on Fourteenth St. near Howard in Harrisburg.

County Treasurer Joseph H. Hartland has received a check for $28,550.66 for the county's share of the state gasoline tax. The amount is several thousand dollars larger than the last previous check. It covers the period from June 1, to Nov. 30, of this year. Money received from the gasoline tax goes into a separate fund, and is used for paying damages and expenses incident to the construction or changes in public highways.

The Lawrence Savings and Trust Company has issued an execution against Laura A. Reynolds, executor in the estate of the late Attorney Walter S. Reynolds, to recover on a mortgage against a property for $3500. The mortgage was given in 1931 and there is back interest in addition to the principal.

County commissioners this morning received for approval, from the State Highway department, plans for three bridges to be built over streams north of the city. One of the bridges is over Sulphur run on the New Castle-Pulaski road, near the point where the road leading west from Walmo to the Harbor intersects the New Castle-Pulaski road. The other bridge is close by being over the run leading from the Max Ludwig property across the road, west from Walmo. The two bridges are almost within a stone's throw of each other. The plans also contemplate a change in the road, at the point of intersection of the Walmo and the New Castle-Pulaski road. The other bridge is to be built over Camp run near the Greer farm. All three bridges are badly needed as the present structures are old and inadequate. The county is asked to assume any damages that may result. The commissioners are examining the plans and if found satisfactory will send in an approval.

Although nothing is said about the possible improvement of the New Castle-Pulaski road from a point near the two first mentioned bridges to the village of Pulaski, it is believed that steps in that direction may be taken once the bridges are constructed. The road is already improved from the intersection of the New Wilmington and Pulaski road, past the Harbor bridge to the New Castle-Youngstown road.

Automobile license plates for county cars were received from Harrisburg yesterday. No license fee has to be paid for county cars, but county officials have to pay for licenses on their own cars.

Registration Clerk, Thomas Edmunds, says that he is having considerable trouble in making registrants understand why the bureau is dropping the names of persons who have failed to vote for two years. He believes that the act relating to thereto will explain the purpose of the law. It reads as follows: "Within three months after the municipal election held in 1937, and within three months after each general and municipal election held thereafter, the registration commission shall cause the district registers to be examined, and in the case of each elector who has been registered for a period of at least two years, and who is not recorded as having voted at any election or primary within the period of two years immediately preceding the date of said municipal or general election, the commission shall send to such elector by mail, at the address appearing on the registration card, a notice setting forth that the records of the commission indicate that he has not voted within a period of two years, and that his registration will be cancelled within ten days, unless he shall within that period, file with the commission, a written request for re-instatement of his registration, setting forth his place of residence, and signed by him. At the expiration of the time specified in the notice, the commission shall cancel the registration of such elector unless he has filed with the commission a signed request for his registration as above provided. The cancellation of the registration of any such elector for failure to vote within a period of two years shall not affect the right of any such elector to subsequently re-register by personal application to the commission, in the manner provided by the act."

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Running Amok Has Two Sides

War Department Tells Story Of How Tables Were Turned In Philippines

MILITARY HAS CONTROL IN JAPAN

Central Press
Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—At the war department they tell the story of an army top sergeant who, stationed with a small detachment of soldiers nearby a native village, in early days of American occupation of the Philippines, frequently was annoyed by the running amok of some one of his little brown brotherly neighbors, with fatal results to a doughboy or two before the murderous islander could be disposed of.

The Filipinos supposedly were pacified at that time, but it was noticeable that, whenever one of them ran amok, he invariably ran amok among our troopers.

The top sergeant protested, again and again, to the village headman, and the headman always was profusely apologetic, but he couldn't do anything about it, he said, because the chaps who went loco simply were lunatics; he (the headman) could not foresee that they were going cuckoo and consequently could not take anticipatory steps to restrain them.

A TOP SERGEANT'S METHOD

The top sergeant had a little launch, with a machine gun aboard, to patrol an unimportant stream near his camp and the nearby village.

Just after one of his men had been hashed up by a bug-house native on about the half dozenth of these amok-raids, he painted his launch in horrific colors, with eyes in the prow and all that kind of diabolical decorations, and dispatched it up-river to the hamlet, where it fired several machine gun shots ashore, creating considerable havoc.

The headman protested vehemently.

"I apologize profoundly," answered the top sergeant, "but that boat was amok—absolutely irresponsible."

A WARRIOR'S VIEW

"Wouldn't it be humorous," they ask at the war department (and at the navy department also), "if one of our craft were to run amok in Chinese waters, and shoot up a few Japanese vessels off Shanghai, Nanking, Wuhu and thereabouts?

"Subsequently of course we should apologize.

"But we'd run amok again, the next time that the Japanese did—and apologize again and run amok again, as often as Japan ran amok and apologized"

NOT HUMOROUS

However, almost needless to say, Japan would not accept our apologies as readily as that Filipino headman did, or as we have accepted some of Japan's more recent ones.

It is characteristically military to think that such a situation would be humorous.

It is not characteristic of most of us to think of it as a bit amusing.

It is a threat, nevertheless.

It is not amusing to rational Japan, either.

MILITARISTS CONTROL

From the standpoint of a couple of years' past residence in the Orient, my personal conclusion is that Japanese civil statesmanship is as civilized as any in the world.

In fact, it undoubtedly is more intelligent than Mussolini-ism or Hitler-ism.

Nor is the generality of Japanese public opinion unduly amok.

But the military class is crazily bellicose. And it leads the remainder of the country by the schnozzle. Maybe there will be a revolution against it sometime, but, thus far, it is overwhelmingly predominant. It would not hesitate a bit at the prospect of national suicide. For example, the late Premier Inurkai explained that the militarists could not realize certain of their ambitions, because Japan could not finance them. The militarists assassinated him, to teach him to have money when they demanded it.

DICTATORS SUPPORT JAPAN

If military Japan only were involved it would not be so bad.

However, no Occidental power could go to the mat with Japan without starting Germany and Italy on the warpath.

They are as wild-eyed as Japan is.

Hunters In Mercer County Pay $20,000

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Dec. 18—County Treasurer Albert E. Moses revealed that on Saturday, the closing day of the 1937 big game season, that Mercer nimrods had paid in the neighborhood of $20,000 to the state from this county for the privilege of hunting this season. Up to noon, the hour his office closed, 2,673 resident hunting licenses had been issued from the court house, while it is estimated that nearly 4,000 others were sold by authorized agents throughout the county.

The resident hunting licenses sold for $2.00 each. More than 400 non-resident hunters paid $15.00 each for licenses at Mr. Moses office this fall.

The county treasurer also reported a record sale of fishing licenses for the 1937 season, brought on in part by the advent of Sunday fishing and the opening of the Pymatuning Lake to the anglers for the first time last July. More than 7,300 fishing licenses, costing $1.60 each, were sold from this county.

The commonwealth of Pennsylvania received more than $32,000 from Mercer county from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses combined in 1937.
